

DOYLE

INT. OFFICE - DAY

Kenny's eager and earnest assistant, DOYLE, greets Dave Grohl at the reception desk.

(DOYLE)

Hey, Dave. Kenny's just wrapping up a meeting.

Doyle leads Dave down the hall toward Kenny's office.

(DOYLE) (CONT'D)

Sorry, things are running a little slow this morning. Kenny had a rough night's sleep.

DAVE GROHL

Don't tell me he's passing another kidney stone.

(DOYLE)

Worse.

(as if telling a patient it's terminal)

Charlotte's dating a senior.

DAVE GROHL

Oh, the poor bastard.

They arrive at Kenny's office where they come upon a despondent Kenny.

(DOYLE)

There he is! How are you feeling, sir?

KENNY

Doyle, I told you this is a casual workplace. You don't have to call me "sir."

(DOYLE)

I'm just trying to show you the proper respect. A respect, I might add, that you've earned through years of unprecedented success. A success unlike the world of music has ever seen.

DAVE GROHL

You're a big fan of his aren't you?

(DOYLE)

I wouldn't say fan. I'm more of a disciple. I want to learn everything this man knows. If I could, I'd crack his brain open and suck his knowledge out with a straw.

KENNY

Not loving that image.

(DOYLE)

You're right, I'm sorry. I'm doing it again, aren't I?

KENNY

It's okay.

(DOYLE)

It is not okay. I've made you feel uncomfortable with the graphic imagery of my adoration. How can I ever make it up to you?

KENNY

Um, by leaving?

(DOYLE)

(to Dave Grohl)

See? That's why he's the best. I ask a question and he responds with the perfect answer. I should leave. The sooner the better.

A beat.

(DOYLE)(CONT'D)

I'm still here, aren't I?

KENNY

Yup.

Doyle hangs his head in shame, as we...

FADE OUT.
